

THE GAZETTE.

TUESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 28.

WHOM NOT TO MARRY.—Marriage is a ticklish business at best, and young ladies who wish to live happily, should before engaging themselves use every honorable means to acquaint themselves with the character and habits of their suitors. They should never marry

1. One who is not known to be truthful and temperate;
2. Nor one who is not honest and industrious;
3. Nor one who is a gambler;
4. Nor a profane sewerer; for one will not be likely to reverence his wife who treats with irreverence his Maker;
5. Nor a loafer—that is, one who has no certain calling, trade or profession by which to secure a family an honest livelihood, but lives by his over taxed wits, or by sponging on unthankful friends;
6. Nor a hard man; for he who for gain ruins others, will, sooner or later, come to ruin himself.

7. Nor a dry goods clerk who spends all his wages on gold-headed canes, kid gloves, fine clothing and costly jewelry;
8. Nor a rich man who acquired his riches by fraud or oppression, for such lie under the ban of heaven, and his riches are destined to prove cursors rather than blessings;
9. Nor a poor man who is ashamed of his poverty; for such will be ashamed to work, and heaven has decreed, "If any man will not work, neither shall he eat."

Take the advice of your mother and other experienced friends before you enter into an engagement. It will be too late to seek it after you have plighted your faith to a suitor.—Lynchburg News.
